Scarinci Hollenbeck (<https://scarincihollenbeck.com/>) announced that Maryam M. Meseha, Stan Barrett and Jorge R. de Armas joined the firm's litigation, corporate transactions and business, and government and education law practice groups, respectively. Meseha and Armas will be based in Lyndhurst, New Jersey, and Barrett will be based in Red Bank, New Jersey. According to LinkedIn, Meseha joins from Coughlin Duffy (<https://www.coughlinduffy.com/>), Barrett joins from Levine Lee (<https://www.levinelee.com/>), and Armas joins from Davis, Saperstein & Salomon (<https://www.dsllaw.com/>). All three attorneys join as counsel.

Columbus, Ohio-based attorney Christina Hultsch left Porter Wright Morris & Arthur (<https://www.porterwright.com/#s.7>) to take on a partner role at Benesch (<https://www.beneschlaw.com/>), according to an announcement (<https://www.beneschlaw.com/resources/healthcare-attorney-christina-hultsch-joins-benesch.html>) from the firm. She will work in Benesch's health care practice group, where she will handle health care regulatory and transactional matters. In addition to her health care law practice, Hultsch counsels clients on cybersecurity issues.

Former Lowenstein Sandler (<https://www.lowenstein.com/>) lawyer Ryan M. Wilson is now a partner in New York-based Morrison Cohen (<https://www.morrisoncohen.com/index.cfm>)'s business litigation department. According to a release (<https://www.morrisoncohen.com/news-page?itemid=679>), Wilson litigates complex commercial and finance-related matters. He also handles federal and state government investigations, criminal prosecutions, enforcement actions and litigations, and sensitive internal investigations

Arnall Golden Gregory (<https://www.agg.com/>) brought on William Olsen to its Washington, D.C., office, where Olsen will act as the managing director of forensic advisory services and work with members of the firm's anti-corruption, government investigations and white-collar crime practices. According to Arnall Golden's announcement (<https://www.agg.com/news-insights/news/bill-olsen-recognized-leader-in-forensic-advisory-services-joins-aggs-growing-d-c-office-and-expands-anti-corruption-practice/>), Olsen was previously accounting firm Grant Thornton (<https://www.grantthornton.com/>)'s national practice leader for compliance and investigations.
