RHOBH: Why Diana Jenkins Filed A Lawsuit To Unmask Bott Attackers

Olivia Landon - Saturday

Diana Jenkins is dead set on setting all the stories straight on The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills, and now she's filing a lawsuit to unmask who orchestrated the bot attack against Garcelle Beauvais's son Jax on Instagram. Jax made it clear that he did not sign up to be on television and did not need to be distracted by so much drama and harassment during his first month back at school. The entire RHOBH cast posted a message supporting Jax on their social pages and condemning the attacks.

Initially, media outlets speculated whether Diana or Erika Jayne was behind the attacks as they are not on good terms with Garcelle on RHOBH season 12. However, both women swiftly denied these claims, and Diana responded with a separate series of lawsuits requesting that media outlets remove defamatory and false statements. Diana's already been somewhat successful to some degree, as several podcasters and bloggers have removed their content. Diana also donated a hundred thousand dollars to the victims of Lion Air plane crashes currently in litigation with Tom Girardi. After a rocky RHOBH season 12 and other online drama, RHOBH's Diana got in trouble for racist comments during an online argument that she blamed on English not being her first language.

To clear up what she can, Diana's determined to find out who started the attacks on Jax. Diana's attorneys, Krista M. Enns and J. Erik Connolly wrote, "It is wrong to send racist and bullying messages to a fourteen-year-old boy," the RHOBH star's attorneys stated in the lawsuit. "It is wrong to pretend that someone else was the person responsible for sending those messages. And it is wrong to mastermind this hateful campaign in anonymity. This action seeks to unmask and hold accountable the morally bankrupt person who has attacked a child and placed blame for their actions on Ms. Jenkins." Diana and her attorneys plan to request subpoenas from Meta, the company Instagram is owned by, to obtain evidence of who organized the attacks.

She resents that the attacker deflected blame onto Diana after occasionally feuding with Garcelle. Threatening messages to Diana have left her stressed and frustrated as these issues have damaged her reputation and business. "Dozens, if not hundreds, of people have posted messages attacking Ms. Jenkins for an act that she never took," her attorneys stated. Last week on RHOBH, Crystal Kung Minkoff and Garcelle questioned why Erika didn't express more compassion for the victims in the many lawsuits against her ex-husband. As most of the RHOBH women questioned why Erika didn't donate money to the victims as a moral imperative rather than a legal necessity, Diana wondered why they didn't.

damage everyone's reputations in the process. However, if this latest lawsuit reveals the culprit of the bot attacks, it could spur a new round of drama for everyone involved.

Leah Queen, 44, has been charged with second-degree sexual assault as well as possession of a controlled substance. According to online records, she was arrested last Thursday and bail was set at $50,000. She bonded out of jail on Saturday.

According to an affidavit obtained by the Northwest Arkansas Democrat-Gazette, the alleged assault happened in 2010. Queen allegedly befriended the teen at a basketball game. He was 17 years old at the time.

Then, according to the affidavit, Queen and the teen "began socializing outside of school hours and communicating through social media" in March 2010.

The affidavit alleges that Queen and the alleged victim began to "engage in deviate sexual activity" during the summer of 2010 – between his junior and senior years of high school. The sexual assault allegedly occurred in Queen's office or in a school bathroom.

According to the affidavit, the alleged victim told police about the sexual relationship last month. The affidavit claims that the teen's parents, Queen's ex-husband and a former colleague of Queen's "corroborated multiple details of the alleged victim's disclosure."

bed. The former colleague reported seeing "disturbing behavior" at the time, the affidavit says, the Democrat-Gazette reports.

Because Arkansas has no statute of limitations for sexual assault involving a minor, Queen can still face charges for her alleged actions from 12 years ago.

Terrie DePoala, the Superintendent of Gentry Public Schools, told CBS-5 that Queen has been suspended from her position. The school district is not aware of any other allegations concerning current students.

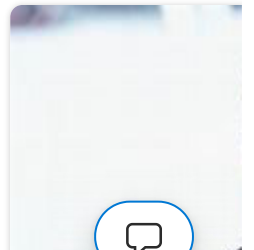

Queen has not yet entered a plea. Court records do not reflect an attorney authorized to speak on her behalf.
