This panel discussion will identify the latest regulatory developments in the US and Canada relating to cybersecurity, not all of which are in harmony. The discussion will model a "tabletop" exercise in working through scenarios from real life examples, and offer suggestions to the audience with the benefit of their own experiences of managing cybersecurity events across complex organizations, including collaboration across finance, information technology and legal departments, senior management, members of the audit committee and other board directors, customers, technology vendors and external counsel and auditors.
