

Benesch Certified as a Most Loved Workplace®

AUGUST 1, 2023

AmLaw 200 law firm Benesch is pleased to announce that it has been certified as a Most Loved Workplace®, which provides the most comprehensive review of workplace sentiment for organizations today. The certification coincides with Benesch being named a 2023 Top Workplace by Cleveland.com and The Plain Dealer, marking the firm's eighth consecutive appearance on the list and eleventh time overall.

"We are honored to be included as a Most Loved Workplace® and join the ranks of so many prestigious organizations," said Benesch Chief Human Resource Officer Liz Gillmore. "It is truly a testament to our commitment to putting our people first and fostering a culture of inclusivity and genuine caring for one another, both personally and professionally."

"When we say our employees are our number one asset, we truly mean that; it's not just lip service," added Benesch Managing Partner Gregg Eisenberg. "As Benesch continues to grow, we remain committed to investing in our people, which makes this recognition particularly meaningful. The certification is based on feedback from members of our team at every level, so it's wonderful to know that our efforts resonating."

Backed by Best Practice Institute (BPI), the Most Loved Workplace® certification identifies companies where employees are the happiest and most satisfied. Its proprietary Love of Workplace Index™ factors in anonymous feedback around employee satisfaction and sentiment including the level of respect, collaboration, support and sense of belonging they feel inside the company.
