Law.com Quotes Benesch Partner Kevin Frankel on Shifting State Attorney General Litigation Trends

NOVEMBER 13, 2026

Law.com recently quoted Kevin Frankel, a partner at Benesch and lead of the firm's State Attorneys General Practice Group, in the article "'A Lot of Firepower Just Switched Sides': Democrats' AG Gains Could Reshape State Litigation, but Bipartisanship Isn't Finished." The article examines how recent state attorney general election results could reshape multistate litigation and enforcement priorities, while bipartisan activity is expected to continue in areas such as data privacy, artificial intelligence, antitrust and consumer protection.

Throughout the article, Kevin discussed how changes in state leadership could affect attorney general coalitions, noting that the shift in Texas could significantly weaken the existing coalition of Republican attorneys general. He also pointed to Kansas as another state where the election results could alter the makeup and influence of that coalition.

Kevin noted that attorneys general are likely to continue focusing on issues that directly affect consumers, including pricing and antitrust enforcement, while emerging technologies such as artificial intelligence could create new areas of scrutiny. Speaking about these intersecting trends, he said, "Those two different threads will collide, and it's going to be a little ugly."
