Law360 Pulse Features Benesch's Innovation Leadership Expansion

AUGUST 13, 2026

Benesch was recently featured in Law360 Pulse for its strategic investment in innovation and technology leadership through the appointment of Jason Dirkx as Chief Innovation Officer, leading the firm's new Innovation Department, and Abby Levine as Chief Information Officer.

The article highlights the firm's commitment to advancing innovation and enhancing the technology capabilities that support clients and business operations. In discussing the appointments, Scott Golin, Benesch Chief Strategy and Operating Officer, emphasized the impact both leaders will have on the firm's future.

"Jason brings the rare combination of legal industry knowledge, technology fluency, strategic judgment and change leadership that this role demands, and Abby brings deep experience leading IT strategy and technology transformation," Golin said. "Together, their leadership will help us continue building the technology and innovation capabilities that support our clients, our people and the future of the firm."

Dirkx and Levine will help drive Benesch's innovation strategy, strengthen the firm's technology infrastructure, and support the continued delivery of exceptional client service through modern, forward-looking solutions.
