Jonathan Todd, Vice Chair of our Transportation & Logistics Practice Group, published an article in Quality Digest titled “Geopolitical Risk for Supply Chains.”

Geopolitical risk is emerging as one of the greatest challenges facing domestic and international business today. It has risen from a boardroom issue to one drawing the awareness and attention of both personnel and the general public. These days everyone knows the word “supply chain” and has some general understanding of tariffs, sanctions, and even congestion. In a world where there’s no longer a zero-risk solution, the task becomes crafting pragmatic strategies that adapt and get business done while mitigating negative effects. Recognizing how we got here and using some go-to tools will help.
