Overview

Amelia assists private equity investors, publicly traded companies and privately held businesses with mergers, acquisitions, private equity transactions and reorganizations. She also drafts a wide variety of transaction-related documents. Amelia has served on client teams handling stock and asset purchases and divestitures, financings including capital-raises, and other commercial transactions. Additionally, she regularly engages in contract review and prepares corporate governance documentation.

Having worked on numerous high-volume deals across industries, Amelia brings insights into the challenges that may arise, strategies to manage the risks, and creativity in devising workable solutions. Clients and colleagues appreciate her attention to detail, meticulous work, responsiveness and clarity.

Before joining Benesch, Amelia worked as an M&A tax associate where she gained experience in buy-side and sell-side tax due diligence for wide-ranging clients and assisted in client reorganizations. She leverages that experience and insight when assessing, advises on and drafting deal terms.
