Overview

Brian counsels clients on a broad range of corporate and transactional matters, including mergers and acquisitions, private fund investments, securities compliance, and public company governance. A corporate attorney with experience representing a diverse set of clients-from family-owned businesses and independent sponsors to private equity firms and large, publicly held companies-he advises on acquisitions, buyouts, dispositions and equity financings, and represents public pension plans, family offices and other investors in connection with investments in alternative investment vehicles.

Brian also counsels publicly held companies on ongoing reporting and disclosure requirements, securities law compliance and corporate governance matters. His practice across transactional, private funds and governance matters allows him to offer comprehensive, practical advice on a wide range of corporate issues.

Representative Matters

- Represented Richardson Electronics in the sale of a majority interest in its healthcare unit to DirectMed Imaging.
