Overview

Chris defends employers against claims pertaining to all forms of employment discrimination, harassment, retaliation, wrongful discharge, wage and hour claims under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) and state analogs, and disputes over compensation and severance. He also enforces post-employment restrictive covenants and protects employers' confidential information and trade secrets. Chris has practiced before federal and state courts across the country, arbitrators and administrative agencies. He has experience with all phases of litigation, including pre-action investigation, pleadings, discovery, motion practice, trial, and settlement negotiations.

Chris also advises clients on a variety of employment-related matters, including, but not limited to, compliance with the FLSA and state wage and hour laws, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) and state leave statutes, and the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act (WARN) Act and other regulations governing layoffs and terminations. He has additional experience drafting restrictive covenant agreements, employment and separation agreements, workplace policies, and safety regulations. He works collaboratively with clients to assess and implement reasonable accommodations to employees who require the same, conduct workplace investigations and internal trainings, and, when necessary, separate employees. He further represents and counsels employers in connection with their existing collective bargaining relationships with labor organizations.

Prior to joining Benesch, Chris practiced at two law firms in New York City for the better half of a decade. He maintains strong relationships with clients and colleagues there to this day.

Representative Matters
