Overview

Daniel's practice focuses on advising acute, long term care and post-acute care providers and their ancillary service businesses on regulatory business issues, transactional matters and advocacy matters. His specialty areas include long-term care ancillary services; telehealth and remote patient monitoring; urgent care centers; home health and hospice; physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech language pathology; behavioral health, including Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA), DDD and IDD, home- and community- based community services, substance abuse disorder treatment centers, social work, psychology and mental health counseling; physician organizations and MSOs; dental practices and DSOs; ambulatory surgery centers and other ambulatory care facilities; retail, institutional and specialty pharmacy; and group purchasing organizations for health benefits

Daniel regularly counsels clients on regulatory issues, compliance, licensure, HIPAA, state privacy laws, certification, Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement, telemedicine and telehealth considerations and in the area of fraud and abuse, including, federal and state anti-kickback laws, physician self-referral laws, and the False Claims Act.

Client Testimonials

"Besides his expertise in anything healthcare and privacy compliance, his responsiveness is superior - I feel like I am his only client" - Healthcare Client, Chambers USA

"He breaks down issues into simple parts and can give real practical advice." - Benesch Client, Chambers USA

Representative Matters

- Represented Asana Hospice, a national hospice provider, as healthcare regulatory counsel, in its acquisition by Amedisys, Inc.
- Represented a primary care group in the business formation of a management support organization to physician practices in New York and other states with a focus on physician extenders and telemedicine in long term care facilities and to enhance EBITDA for a future capital event. Handled all aspects of structuring, diligence and execution of all arrangements and ongoing post-closing integration and regulatory matters.
- Served as healthcare regulatory counsel in the sale of a physical therapy/chiropractic medicine practice to a private equity-backed buyer. Benesch's deep understanding and substantial experience with physical therapy and chiropractic medicine was critical to resolve various transactional and regulatory issues that arose over the course of the deal, including an OIG self-disclosure.
- Represented a private equity-backed portfolio company in its acquisition of a Georgia-based Hospice.
- Represented an urgent care center in the acquisition of a facility and in various ongoing transactional and regulatory matters, including formation of management arrangements, COVID-19 testing arrangements, COVID vaccination setups, employment and medical director arrangements, and services agreements.
- Representing a telehealth physician practice as healthcare regulatory and transactional counsel in all legal matters with a focus in New York and New Jersey, such as in connection with the formation of a management services organization and corresponding medical group, ongoing regulatory guidance in connection with telehealth matters and remote patient monitoring arrangements, and drafting services agreements, employment agreements and corporate formation documentation.
- Represented a management support organization supplying management services to physician practices in New York, New Jersey and other states with a focus on physician extenders, psychiatry, telemedicine and remote patient monitoring so as to enhance EBITDA for a future capital event. Handled all aspects of structuring, diligence and execution of all arrangements. Advised on post-closing integration and currently providing ongoing regulatory support.
- Representing a cancer center as healthcare regulatory and transactional counsel in various matters, including the business formation of a physician practice providing cancer and hematology professional services, advising in connection with employment agreements, service agreements, managed care contracting, and other ongoing regulatory matters.
