Overview

Grace focuses her practice on litigation and has experience with white-collar matters, including DOJ enforcement actions, internal investigations and Title IX litigation, as well as commercial litigation disputes.

In addition to serving as a summer associate at Benesch, Grace was a summer associate at Flannery Georgalis. She also externed for the Honorable J. Philip Calabrese, where she gained hands-on experience conducting legal research, observing how cases are managed behind the scenes and developing a strong understanding of effective client advocacy.

During law school, Grace worked in her university's Wrongful Conviction Clinic-an experience she found incredibly rewarding. She worked on complex, nuanced matters, developing grit and perseverance while collaborating with colleagues to identify viable paths forward.

Grace regularly monitors emerging legal issues in the white-collar and compliance spaces. Clients appreciate her ability to think outside the box and explore creative, strategic solutions to complex problems.
