Overview

Jennifer represents clients in real estate acquisitions, financings, development, leasing and dispositions, as well as advises on managing complex real estate-related issues.

Experienced in all types of commercial properties, with a focus on retail, Jennifer has successfully negotiated deals involving offices, shopping center and store leases, industrial properties, multifamily housing, mixed-use facilities and raw land. She also has advised on and negotiated deals for the development and redevelopment of properties and property parcelizations, including the impact of preexisting agreements, easements and other rights and restrictions on property use or development.

A former in-house counsel at a publicly traded real estate investment trust, Jennifer has an insider's perspective and firsthand experience dealing with the day-to-day challenges and managing the business and legal risks and concerns that arise regarding real estate interests. Representing both buyers and sellers, she understands the issues on both sides of deals and knows how to limit discord, achieve consensus and get deals done.
